Warped Perspective

Issue 28

September 2011

President's Message:

by Ruth Thoem, President

September is such a good month to start something new. Anyone with connections to the school year knows the anticipation (OK, and dread) that can fill the air as September approaches. New clothes, new pencils, new friends, new challenges! That's how I feel in September. The air seems clearer to me, and now that there are no school connections for me, those new coloured pencils beckon to me, for myself.

I just read a great essay by Anita Osterhaug of Weaving Today. She offers "creativity is a discipline in itself, perhaps the most challenging discipline of all. For a few of us, creations may spring instantly from thought into being, fully formed, but I've seen many handweavers who gather materials, keep notebooks of ideas, and sample until materials, colors, structure, and technique converge to realize their original vision." A great springboard for a September start.

<http://www.weavingworld.ca/bwg.htm>

Last night I read a design notebook from our library, wrapped yarns with inspiration from William Hodge's recent workshop on colour and planned, with more excitement than usual, my next scarf. I encourage you to try this discipline for yourself. I know several Guild members who are deep into this, but if not, give it a little try.

Oh yes, and when you have planned it, add one more item to the length of the warp and put that one into the Christmas Sale!

Our September meeting with Don Marshall provided us all with an opportunity accept the challenge of improving our Guild. Much food for thought was generated, and I trust we are all, individually and in small groups, mulling over what can happen next, and next, and next. What is your part in this? The Nominating Committee needs to hear from you, your thoughts on equipment and process in the guild should be known. Is there something you've been wishing and hoping for, but have not voiced? Speak up, step up. We're all in this together, and we'll have more fun if we all take part.

Happy weaving and spinning,
Ruth

Finger Lakes Arts Festival

by Freda Veitch

On September the 17th I went to the Finger Lakes Arts Festival hosted by the Genesee Valley Handspinners Guild at Hemlock Fairgrounds N.Y. It was held Saturday and Sunday, admission $5.

There were 80 vendors, 40 in a large Exhibition Hall, some in 3 Barns and some along the roads in tents. In one building the results of many competitions were shown with some fleece that had been judged and were for sale. In another were demonstrations of lace making, silkworms with silk reeling, ancient sock knitting machines (there is a guild doing it), quilting etc. and displays from other Guilds. Being a Fiber Festival it was not only spinning though that was the main theme. Rochester has a large active Weavers and Spinners Guild and might be worth a visit. Workshops were held in the 4H building and there was a small interesting museum telling the story of Hemlock. Of course there were Food Vendors with interesting stuff some of which I did not recognize.

There were sheep, llamas and alpacas in and around the barns and demonstrations there of shearing, felting, drop spindling, combing llama fiber, carding, flax to linen, flax spinning, nuno felting, charka spinning, angora spinning, spinning on a great wheel etc, Many of these things one could try. It was impossible to see everything but I tried.

I like to go to this Festival every couple of years because the vendors are new to me. There is a great variety of fibers, books, buttons, notions etc. 1 rug hooking stall with supplies, Goldring drop spindles had a stall, finished goods, sheepskins, etc. etc. There was an interesting stall with used equipment. 2 Great Wheels in working order, about the size of the one in the studio, were both sold, both with $275 labels. But down at the Barns were 2 similar condition Great Wheels sold for $200 each. An older Ashford in good condition sold for $375. Everyone is very friendly; of course we all have a common interest.

I had a wonderful day and of course didn't buy anything. These bags? Well.

More Special Dates:

Words from the Library

Book Review "Sprang Unsprung" by Carol James:

by Celine Gorham

Carol James' book, "Sprang Unsprung" is great for anyone wishing to learn Sprang from the basics through to more advanced pattern making and colour play. The step-by-step instructions are offered for both left and right-handed folks, and are always accompanied by helpful coloured illustrations and photographs of work in progress. Each page of the book is jam packed with project details interspersed with historic sprang woven pieces.

James' experience with Sprang weaving is extensive, and it shows in her clear instructions and logical progression of technique. She even provides schematics for building several different types of frame looms for weaving. The projects build upon what the weaver has learned from the last chapter, and for further inspiration and learning, James has put together a thorough annotated bibliography.

This book is very user-friendly and would be a good resource for anyone wanting to learn Sprang from the ground up. Go to www.sashweaver.ca for more information. We also have her companion book “Fingerweaving Untangled” in the guild library.

Now DVD Nights from the Library

As you can see in the Dates to Remember Section, we have two DVD nights organized. Mark October 17 and November 28 on your calendar and plan to come out for evenings that allow for good discussion. If there is a special one in the library that you would like to see scheduled, please contact your librarians, otherwise, we will just surprise you.

Weaving and Spinning for Christmas

by Willa McCaughan

An exciting time ahead! What to weave for the upcoming Christmas Sale! How much to spin and what colors to use! This is a fantastic opportunity to sell your exquisite scarves, cosy shawls and bright coloured tea towels. In consultation with Miss Ellie, my fashionista Granddaughter, the colors for this fall/winter are: jewel tones, darker reds and leopard prints.

Your jewel tone creations could be in preparation for the 2012 Juried Show.

This is also a perfect time to participate as a volunteer in the great Christmas Sale/Soup Bowl Event. And so sign up to volunteer for one of the many positions in Sales with our Guild or in representing the Burlington Art Centre and welcoming the community to this exciting event.

Donate a Christmas Decoration to the Guild Tree

In past years members of the BHSB supported the BAC Foundation Fund generously by knitting little sweaters, which were put on a Christmas tree in the studio. The funds raised through this effort passed through the hands of Arts Burlington to the BAC Foundation Fund and we are running out of sweaters.

This year each member is being asked to make one Christmas tree decoration as a donation. The design of the item is to be decided upon by the individual. The materials and methods should reflect those allowed in the guild standards. It is also the makers' responsibility to suggest a retail price for the item and submit it to the Sales Committee in time for the Christmas Sale. Please see Guild flyers for take in times, or contact Willa McCaughan or Lesley French.

BHSG Juried Show 2012: GEMS

by Eleanor Roberts

I have been reading my Webster dictionary lately. I thought I might get some queries about what a gem was and wanted to be prepared.

- GEM: a jewel, a precious or semi-precious stone, cut and polished for an ornament.
- JEWEL: an ornament of precious metal often set with stones or decorated with enamel and worn as an accessory.

Then I wondered about pearls, which happen to be a favourite gem of mine (?). Is it or isn't it. So I went back to my dictionary.

- PEARL: used as a gem, a dense variously coloured and usually lustrous concretion formed of concentric layers of nacre within the shell of a mollusc.

My favourite gem is JADE. My engagement ring is a big!! piece of jadeite, the precious form of jade. I also have various pieces of the semi-precious jade called nephrite. This is unusual for gems: both forms, precious and semiprecious, by definition are GEMS.

Sapphires and rubies are the same composition, corundum, the colours usually seen as different; RUBIES ARE RED AND SAPPHIRES ARE BLUE. However one of my sisters-in-law had a pale pink sapphire for her engagement ring and I have pictures from National Geographic of blue, yellow and red gems and I have read of orange sapphires!!

At the least we have a wide range of colours to weave with and there are still patterns to think about.

Diamonds anyone?

Goings On In the Studio

by Jennifer Earle

Members had the opportunity this week to find out more about Celine Gorham and her interests while she conducted a snapshot of natural dyeing practices. We are a lucky guild to have Celine in our midst since she is a practised weaver/dyer who has brings curiosity, creativity and a investigative approach to things fibre related.

You may have noticed that small jars have been springing up around the studio. These contain parts of her study and the results are being gathered into an amazing sample book which is full of records and variables. Ah! Celine is a record keeper of repeatable results and has created tests to keep track of the different outcomes of various materials treated various ways. Currently she is weaving on the dreaded loom (McComber) to produce some cotton scarves which will get experimentally dyed.

In her handout this week Celine says “extracting beautiful colour from the natural sources around us is immensely satisfying. I was first introduced to natural dyes as a child, through grass stains on my clothing, and later, through onion skin tie-dyeing. It wasn’t until college that I became aware of the ocean of history and knowledge attached to dyeing with naturally-sourced dyes, and it was there that I began a journey to make sustainable natural colour an important part of my creative process” .

During her presentation, Celine outlined the nature and function of mordants. She does not use the mordants we now know to be toxic but tends to rely on found objects such as rusty nails, soy flour or tea. I wonder if she will have a use for the tea bags we use each week? She stressed that physical safety is a big issue with her and I hope that we will make sure to benefit from her knowledge when it comes to assessing the condition of our dye kitchen.

During the first afternoon we were shown the steps in making a liquor with which to dye. The first thing to do is to determine the weight of goods (WOG) to be dyed and then calculating the amount of dyestuff needed. The lack of suitable measuring tools in our dye kitchen was a bit of a handicap, but Celine’s practised eye came into play and we were able to “approximate” amounts. While the variety of protein fibres (wool, silk) got heated with alum for an hour, she demonstrated how to make a liquor for dyeing. The chosen material was rose hips from Marian’s garden. They had been first frozen and then mashed. Water was added and the beautiful orange-red substance was allowed to heat for an hour.

I haven’t see how the dye turns out as this is going to “press” before I get back to the studio! Bet it’s lovely.

Burlington Handweavers and Spinners Guild: Where Do We Go From Here? Summary from Don Marshall: September 12th, 2011

1. Three positive aspects of the Guild: (Note: * = repeated comment)

- Workshops and program *
- Well stocked supply cupboard
- More autonomy for executive positions – flexibility in operations
- Classes on computer assisted weaving
- No cliques **
- Beading lessons – on loom
- More member participation in guild and BAC responsibilities **
- Listed information on member expertise and interests
- More workshops *****
- Increased access hours to Guild room
***
- Less required volunteer hours
- Increase emphasis on teaching – outside expertise
- More social time
- Upgrade equipment – specialized looms *
- Ventilation for dye room *
- More group activities/projects
- New and younger members *
- Summer staff
- New weaving technology
- Improve general communication *
- More “quickie” workshops
- More as well as newer members stepping forward into executive positions

2. Three needs, challenges or necessary improvements for the Guild:

- Floors need to be cleaned each week
- More organization of activities
- Mentoring for new members and/or new weavers *
- More members contributing time and effort rather than the “same old few”
****

- Needs to be less organization
  - Complex looms that are easily operable by elderly members
  - More equipment to keep up with new trends in spinning, weaving, beading, felting etc.
  - Not enough communication/information regarding Guild functions
  - More active weaving for guild sales
  - Guild lacks a sense of direction and purpose
  - All cupboards on a single key
  - Get rid of the Macomber
  - A willing and able “Vice-president”
  - Get rid of – “we always do it like this”
3. Out the Door: new thought, need to consider, between now and then:
- Please do not let this momentum get lost. This was a great start.
  - Get out my Inkle loom and become a weaver.
  - Will look at “all” the equipment with a more critical eye.
  - A good decision looks after the minority as well as the majority.
  - Lets continue to make this an exciting place to create and share.
  - Review “constitution”
  - Will a long-term plan limit new thoughts?
- Change executive jobs
  - A three to five year plan is critical and necessary. *
  - Job sharing so that “snow birds” can participate more.
  - Maybe we will actually be able to make a decision and get rid of the Macomber loom.
  - This is a brilliant starting point and process for decision-making.
  - Keep in mind “FACTS” not “opinion” in decision making.
  - Focus should be on developing a strong executive as a basis for decision-making before starting the planning.
  - I think we have addressed things the guild so NEEDS to hear and act upon in order to move forward.
  - This has been a great arena for members to finally talk about guild business. We never seem to have the time to talk about the things that really matter.
  - Brainstorm ideas for new development.
  - Outreach for new members.
  - Vote for increased guild space.
  - “Communicate”
  - Display work(s) in the guild studio and increase number of display cases.
  - “Action” versus “Reaction”
  - Balancing the history and tradition with the future and new possibilities.

As your editor, I'm taking the liberty of putting information in the newsletter although it has been circulated earlier to the membership. I think that it is important that we reflect on the positive qualities of our organization. In a subsequent meeting with Don, we identified three issues that were doable by the end of the year and to this end we have three "spearheads" moving on with the following issues:

- Ventilation: to investigate existing ventilation in the dye kitchen, upgrades required and costing. Ruth Thoem is your contact.
- Membership Profile/Inventory: A survey to be completed, to provide information to assist in growing the Guild, planning workshops, programs, etc. Jennifer Earle and Pat Hood your contacts.
- Roles and Responsibilities: A clarification of each Executive and Convenor Job Description. Doreen Winter your contact.

One of the most important observations to my mind made at the "condensing meeting" held on Wednesday September 21st was the following:

What's in the room and not at home will cause the people to come to the Guild

Interesting eh? Hope you think about this and share yourself with the Guild.
We are only as strong as our membership.

Your Guild Needs YOU!

by Doreen Winter, Sue Stasiuk, Willa McCaughan

We need your support and your time. The Nominating Committee welcomes and looks forward to calls and / or e-mails from you, volunteering to fill a position or to nominate a willing Guild member who, you know, would love to be part of our Executive or to Chair a committee.

Please don't be shy---give us a call! If you have a question about any position just ask.

In October and November the Nominating Committee will be contacting Guild members to finalize the list for the 2012 Executive.
